

Adrian Hughes

I studied Theoretical Physics at the University of Manchester, UK.

15 years as a Computational Physicist @ "Major UK defence contractor."

My first interest was the use of accelerators to study shock compression of condensed matter.

Now I develop models to study accelerator performance, such as electrical behaviour and beam dynamics.

Outside of work I sail racing dinghies and play the ukulele.

